Suspect in credit union holdup

Tied to bank robberies in Indiana and Kentucky

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A man police have described as a serial bank robber has been linked to the Dec. 28 armed holdup of the Business and Industrial Federal Credit Union on Madison's hilltop.

Anthony John Martinez, 30, of Louisville, is facing multiple charges in connection with bank robberies in Kentucky and Indiana dating back to 2015 including four holdups in Louisville and another in Clark County, Indiana, as well as the Dec. 28 robbery in Madison.

He was arrested Thursday, Feb. 13, after a joint task force investigation led by the Federal Bureau of Investigation identified him as the suspect in the holdups based partially on social media posts, his cell phone records and the getaway car used in all robberies.

According to an arrest citation filed in Kentucky, the first holdup linked to Martinez was in November 2015 when he was accused of robbing the Jefferson County Federal Credit Union at 9600 Ormsby Station Road in Louisville wearing a mask and carrying a gun. An arrest citation said that in that holdup he "forced the employees inside the bank, forced them to give him a substantial amount of bank cash, forced the employees to the floor and bound them" before leaving.

Citing an ongoing investigation, Madison Police Detective Ricky Harris declined to give specific details about the Madison robbery other than Martinez is believed to have arrived at about the time the bank was opening that Saturday morning, entered the building through a door other than the front entrance used by customers, brandished a handgun, demanded money and left the scene on foot through a field behind the bank.

Harris said the suspect dropped some of the stolen money in the field behind the bank as he ran to a nearby nursing home where witnesses saw him get into a car and leave. While police were unable to get much of a description of the man from video surveillance at the bank — he was wearing gloves, sunglasses, a ski mask and a hoodie — they were able to get a description of the vehicle he was driving from an employee at The Waters of Clifty Falls who watched him run through the field, get into a car and drive away.

Harris said Martinez has ties to both Scott County and Louisville and has spent time living in both. He resided in Scott County just a few miles from the Jefferson County line.

5 MORE TO ER FROM MCHS

2 adults, 3 more students taken Tuesday

By COLLIN OVERTON

After dealing last week with students becoming ill and nine transports by EMS to King's Daughters' Hospital, Principal Michael Gasaway announced an unidentified sickness simultaneously struck two adults and three more students Tuesday between class periods at Madison Consolidated High School.

A vaping device was confiscated from a student during fourth period Tuesday near the construction area in the C-wing, Gasaway said in a news release. During the period between fourth and fifth periods, two adults monitoring the area had sudden symptoms of an unknown illness and were taken to the emergency room by ambulance, Gasaway said. Three students in the area also were showing mild symptoms and were taken to the hospital, he said. School officials immediately called the Department of Homeland Security to conduct an air quality test in the area around the classroom and told students not to leave their classrooms until testing was complete. The air tested negative for any concerns and students were released to resume their normal schedules, Gasaway said.

The school corporation clarified that at no point Tuesday was there a lock-down or lock-out on campus.

Emergency Medical Services made nine runs from the school to King's Daughters' Hospital ER last week with students who had symptoms including elevated heart rate, dilated pupils, fluctuated breathing patterns, limpness and loss of consciousness. Two of those students were taken more than once. Indiana State Police officers were on campus Friday testing the e-cigarettes and found three chemicals consistent in the samples. When the State Department of Toxicology finishes its testing and the school system knows what the chemicals are, MCS has said it will make that information known.

"We are not putting our heads in the sand, we will continue to diligently investigate this matter and are committed to keeping this campus safe for all students and staff. We will continue to battle this ongoing, nationwide vaping epidemic head-on — beginning here at home," Gasaway told students and staff during seventh period Tuesday.

He said the school is working with its resource officers, administrators, school nurse, and healthcare professionals to continue to investigate the cause of these illnesses and said the school did not know if the illnesses Tuesday were related to incidents last week.

MCS issued a news release Monday in which School Resource Officer Tim Armstrong said, "At this time, we are looking for answers and seeking information. However, the longer this goes, the more dangerous the situation becomes — this is life threatening."

This was before the five transports Tuesday but after the nine transports by EMS to King's Daughters' Hospital last week.

"In some cases, the students who were transported were treated because they were not breathing, their hearts had stopped beating — this is a very dangerous, potentially deadly situation," Armstrong said. "Should this situation turn fatal, someone will be held responsible — and it will be a very different discussion."

"Sadly, at the end of the day, this comes down to choices these students are making," said Superintendent Jeff Studebaker in the news release. "These kids are choosing to

City fails to get funds for S.R. 56 work

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

Federal highway dollars Madison had hoped to count on to ease the transition of Highway 56 — which includes the city's Main Street — from a state-maintained road to one controlled by the city will not be approved for this year.

Mayor Bob Courtney announced at Tuesday's city council meeting that the city's grant application for up to $4.5 million in federal funding was recently rejected by the Indiana Department of Transportation. The city made an 11th-hour application for the dollars late last year with the hope that the funds could help pay for improvements to a 4.4-mile section of S.R. 56 from the Milton-Madison Bridge to the top of Hanover Hill.

Under terms of the grant, which was administered by the Indiana Department of Transportation with funds the state receives from the federal government, the city would provide a 20% match for every dollar received through the grant.

City officials had hoped to leverage local dollars to pay to repave and make improvements on the 4.4-mile section of S.R. 56 that the city will take over as part of an agreement reached to receive a roughly $15 million Project 421 Gateway bridge approach to construct a new, less congested access to and from the U.S. 421 Milton-Madison Bridge.

The city had hoped the state would improve S.R. 56 before turning it over to the city, but that condition was never officially written into the agreement, so the state apparently does not plan to do anything to the remaining section of S.R. 56 before the city is scheduled to take over maintenance this summer.

Although maintaining the section of S.R. 56 will be costly to the city's road maintenance budget, city officials have indicated that having ownership of the state highway presents an opportunity for the city to consider changes that would benefit the city and its residential, business and historic interests.

"It was disappointing, however we were a late arrival to the application process," Courtney said of the grant rejection. "They cited one reason was the road would not actually transfer soon enough to be considered this round. As I indicated at council, this allows us to be better prepared next time, finalize the amended road transfer agreement and plan more comprehensively in regards to what having local control means to our community."

Courtney inherited the agreement from former Mayor Damon Welch. He has said some of the terms might still be open to negotiation and until the transfer takes place there may be room for both sides to seek modifications or concessions. Meanwhile, the city has other grant programs it can pursue but most do not include matches as favorable as the 80/20 federal fund.

"We can utilize Community Crossings grants, which we apply for twice a year, and also apply at the end of this year for federal highway funds that are distributed annually by INDOT," Courtney said. Community Crossings is a state program with a 50/50 match.

Pregnancy work plan unlikely to move

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — Legislators aren't likely to revive a proposal aimed at requiring more businesses to provide workplace accommodations for pregnant women. Gov. Eric Holcomb urged lawmakers to support the proposal, but it was rebuffed in the state Senate by his fellow Republicans earlier this month. Republican Indiana House Speaker Brian Bosma said many questions remained among legislators as the bill faced opposition from the Indiana Chamber of Commerce and the Indiana Manufacturers Association as possibly exposing more businesses to lawsuits. The proposal would have required Indiana businesses with more than 15 employees to allow pregnant women to take longer breaks, transfer to less physical work and take unpaid time off after childbirth. Some larger companies already provide pregnancy accommodations under federal regulations and 27 other states have laws similar to Holcomb's proposal. Bosma said he talked with Holcomb after the governor pledged to keep pushing for lawmakers to approve the bill during this year's short legislative session that ends in mid-March. Bosma, however, said the Republican-dominated House would go along with the Senate's vote for sending the issue to a special study committee. "In a short session in a major policy change that businesses have expressed a great deal of reservation about, it needs something more than the second half of a short session to look at, I think," Bosma said.

Daycare background checks in House bill

INDIANAPOLIS — A bill that passed the Indiana House of Representatives unanimously would require all employees at childcare facilities to undergo criminal history background checks, the Daily Journal of Johnson County reported. The current legal requirement for background checks only applies to employees who come into direct contact with children at childcare facilities. House Bill 1264 (http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/house/1264) passed the House of Representatives 93-0 on Feb. 3, and had its first reading in the Indiana Senate on Thursday, according to Indiana General Assembly documents. If signed into law, the bill, authored by Rep. Chris May, R-Bedford, would take effect July 1.

Exhibit focuses on the art, history of quilts

INDIANAPOLIS — The Eiteljorg Museum is continuing a year of exhibits honoring the 100th anniversary of women's suffrage with a feature on quilts and the stories they tell. The exhibit opening March 7 highlights quilts made by women from the early 1800s to the present day. Johanna Blume, the museum's curator of Western art, history and culture, said quilts have long been a way to document history. "Quilts embody personal stories and symbolize community relationships," Blume said. "They document people, places, and events, and serve as visual records – ones created largely by women – that help us study and understand Western art, history, and culture." The quilts featured showcase a variety of artists from different background and time periods, as well as styles or traditions. The exhibit continues until Aug. 9 and is included with regular admission to the museum in downtown Indianapolis. More information about special events tied to the exhibit is available on the museum's website.

Fish kill likely caused by 'a natural event'

PORTAGE — About 200 fish that were found dead Sunday in a river likely died due to natural causes, state wildlife officials said. The shad were found near a Portage, Indiana, marina along the East Branch of the Little Calumet River and all indications point to the fish dying from "a natural event," said James Brindle, communications director for the Indiana Department of Natural Resources. Shad appears to be the only fish species affected, and no other negative effects on wildlife — including birds eating the shad — have been observed, he said. The DNR said that shad die-offs are common in Indiana winters, especially when the temperature suddenly drops from the 30s and 40s to well below freezing — as happened last week in northwest Indiana, The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported. The Indiana Department of Environmental Management is expected to conclusively determine the cause of the fish kill in coming days.

$10 million gift for Purdue bands

WEST LAFAYETTE — A new building for Purdue University's bands and orchestras program will be named after a Florida couple who donated $10 million toward the project. Purdue President Mitch Daniels announced Saturday the donation from Marc and Sharon Hagle. Marc Hagle is president of the Florida-based real estate company Tricor International. He graduated from Purdue in 1971 with a bachelor's degree and in 1972 with a master's. As a student, he performed in the symphonic band and in the marching band drum line, including at the 1967 Rose Bowl. "The department has outgrown its space two times over, and when we were presented with the proposal to help, we bought into it instantly," Marc Hagle said. "Everybody who participates in Bands & Orchestras has an opportunity that will affect them for the rest of their lives, as it did mine." The building will be named Marc and Sharon Hagle Hall. Purdue officials said the program has been housed in Elliott Hall since 1940. More than 1,100 students now participate in it. Construction of the $20 million project is expected to begin in September and finish by the end of 2021. The university plans to raise the remaining $10 million that's needed from other private donors.

Purdue tuition freeze to continue

WEST LAFAYETTE — Purdue University's tuition freeze will continue for a ninth year, the Indiana school's president told alumni this weekend. President Mitch Daniels announced Saturday that Purdue's tuition and fees will remain at current levels into the 2021 school year. The Lafayette Journal & Courier reported the university's tuition and fees are at $9,992 a year for in-state students and $28,794 for out-of-state students. Daniels said university officials wanted to let students and their families plan. "Giving an additional year of assurance matters," he said. "And the admissions people like to be able to tell people who are considering what school to come to." Purdue's freshman classes in 2018 and 2019 broke campus records, and undergraduate enrollment also set a record of 33,646 last fall. Daniels said he hopes that growth will continue.

Grants to help counties clean up from floods

FRANKFORT — A total of $500,000 in grant money is being made available to counties to help with cleaning up flood debris, officials said. The funds will go toward environmentally responsible disposal of solid waste, according to a statement on Tuesday from Gov. Andy Beshear and Energy and Environment Cabinet Secretary Rebecca Goodman. The statement said 12 counties that have received a state of emergency declaration from the governor can apply for up to $50,000 each to cover the cost of collecting, transporting and disposing of municipal solid waste from flooding. The counties eligible to apply for funds include Bell, Clay, Harlan, Hickman, Knox, Lawrence, Leslie, Letcher, McCreary, Metcalfe, Perry and Whitley. "I am pleased to make this money available and stand with communities as they recover from recent flooding," Beshear said. "I encourage everyone doing cleanup to be safe and to help the environment by properly disposing of all debris." Potential hazards during cleanup include asbestos, mold and toxic chemicals. "Please use caution when handling different types of debris," Goodman said.

Feedback sought on career, technical plan

FRANKFORT — Officials are seeking final feedback on a plan to guide career and technical education in the future. Based on initial feedback, the Kentucky Department of Education revised its draft of the Carl D. Perkins State Plan, also known as the Strengthening Career and Technical Education for the 21st Century Act. Stakeholders have the opportunity to share thoughts and feedback on the revisions through March 1, according to a statement from the agency. The revisions relate to the operational definitions of size, scope and quality for both secondary and postsecondary programs. Comments should be emailed to OCTESTinfo@education.ky.gov. The plan will be reviewed by Gov. Andy Beshear's office and then submitted to the U.S. Department of Education in April.

Chicken restaurant robbery foiled by police

LOUISVILLE — A masked man attempting to rob a chicken eatery at gunpoint wound up fleeing the restaurant empty-handed when two married police officers on a date night chased him from the scene, authorities said. Elizabethtown Police Officer Nicole McKeown and her husband, Detective Chase McKeown, were off duty and eating Saturday night when the man tried to rob a Raising Cane's Chicken Fingers eatery in Louisville, The Courier-Journal reported. An arrest citation said Justin T. Carter, 30, entered the restaurant wearing a mask and flashed a gun at an employee several times while demanding money from the register, the report said. Both officers were seen on surveillance video getting up from their table, drawing weapons and chasing Carter outside. The arrest report said Carter dropped the gun and fled. The two officers chased Carter on foot and he was later arrested, authorities said. Carter was charged with first-degree robbery, receiving a stolen firearm and possessing a handgun as a convicted felon. Authorities determined the gun Carter was stolen from Jeffersontown police, the report said. Carter appeared in court Monday and was represented by a public defender. A preliminary hearing is schedule for Feb. 25.

Nearly $70K stolen from Historic Berea inn

BEREA — The general manager of a historic tavern has been accused of stealing nearly $70,000 from the business and then gambling it away. James Smock, 57, was charged with theft by taking from Boone Tavern, a historic hotel and restaurant, Berea police spokesperson Amanda Chitwood said in a news release Tuesday. Detectives determined Smock stole almost $64,000 from daily deposits and nearly $4,000 from the house bank where money was stored, Chitwood said. Smock has refused to speak with detectives, Chitwood said, but police obtained a warrant and arrested him Feb. 9. A preliminary hearing in the case was scheduled for Wednesday, the Courier Journal reported. The complaint warrant said Smock admitted to gambling the money, news outlets reported. Smock was being held in the Fayette County Jail, Chitwood said in the news release. Historic Boone Tavern Hotel & Restaurant of Berea College was built in 1909, according to its website.

Beam Distilling fills 16M bourbon barrels

CLERMONT — The distillery that produces Jim Beam has filled its 16 millionth barrel of bourbon since Prohibition. Family distillers Fred Noe and his son, Freddie Noe, filled the barrel and sealed it at the American Stillhouse in Clermont on Monday, James B. Beam Distilling Co. said in a news release. The brand is beginning its 225th anniversary year. The milestone barrel is on display in Warehouse Two, where visitors touring the American Stillhouse can see it. "It's humbling that we get to fill our 16 millionth barrel as we kick off our 225th anniversary, Fred Noe, seventh generation master distiller for Beam, said in a news release.

House advances bill to end insulin scripts

By WHITNEY DOWNARD
CNHI Statehouse Reporter

INDIANAPOLIS — Insulin users would no longer need a prescription to buy the life-saving medication under a state Senate bill passed by a House committee Wednesday.

Sen. Ed Charbonneau, R-Valparaiso, authored a bill reversing a 2014 law that made a prescription necessary to purchase insulin, which is used primarily by diabetics. Charbonneau said the 2014 measure was spurred by fears of fraudulent medication.

"As a result of those concerns ... Indiana became the only state in the nation to require a prescription for all insulin drugs," Charbonneau said. "Those concerns proved unjustified."

Fishers native George Huntley, a volunteer with the American Diabetes Association, described an instance where a man lost his job and health insurance in Elkhart.

"He ran out of rapid-acting insulin on Monday; this was a Friday," said Huntley, who has Type 1 diabetes. "I told him to hang up and go to Walmart to purchase insulin. ... I didn't know that, at the time, you couldn't do that in Indiana."

A pharmacist at Walmart told the Elkhart man to drive over the border to Michigan to buy the insulin, Huntley said.

Senate Bill 255 (http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/senate/255), which passed the Senate unanimously in January, received the same treatment Wednesday from the House Public Health Committee. It now must pass on the House floor and receive Gov. Eric Holcomb's signature to become law.

Three felony cases in Trimble County move forward

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

Two Trimble County cases — one involving the former road department supervisor and the other involving a former school employee — are headed to the grand jury. A hearing was scheduled in a third case — a shooting in a domestic violence situation. All three were in District Court Tuesday in Bedford.

The case involving Mike Stewart, the former road department supervisor who was charged with possession of meth and paraphernalia in January, was sent to the grand jury.

At the preliminary hearing, the court heard testimony from Brodie Jodry, the Kentucky State Police detective who investigated and arrested Stewart. Jodry provided details about Stewart's arrest Jan. 17 in the parking lot of the Trimble County Courthouse and said Stewart confessed to owning the pipe and methamphetamine, which were found in a jacket in his road department truck. During their interview, Jodry said Stewart told him the meth was given to him one to two days before by another road worker, who is no longer employed by the department.

Four of the department's nine employees were fired after drug tests that were mandated following Stewart's arrest. One employee refused to take the test, another failed and two tried to tamper with the test, the county said.

Mike Stewart (photo above, left), the former Trimble County road department supervisor accused of possessing meth and paraphernalia, fills out court paperwork next to one of his attorneys, Courtney F. Bourne. Anthony Howell (photo left, right) listens while his attorney asks for adjustments in bond conditions. Both defendants appeared at pretrial hearings on Tuesday in Bedford. (Courier staff photos by Collin Overton)

The case of Alexandra Lawhorn, the former Trimble County Schools employee charged with two counts of unlawful transaction with a minor and tampering with physical evidence, was also referred to a grand jury.

KSP Post 5 Detective Dave Roberts testified in Lawhorn's preliminary hearing about his investigation into the case, saying Lawhorn denied having a direct sexual relationship with an underage student but had sent the student partially nude photographs and vaped THC with him and another minor in September. The phone she had used to send and delete messages and ask the student to delete all prior evidence of conversation between them was still being investigated in Louisville, Roberts said.

District Court Judge Jerry Crosby referred all but one count of tampering with evidence to the grand jury, saying that while Lawhorn deleted her own messages, "there's no evidence that she took the juvenile's phone and she destroyed the evidence on the juvenile's phone... she may have given instructions to the juvenile to do the same, but that's not sufficient."

Stewart and Lawhorn's attorneys, Ed and Courtney Bourne, said the grand jury process is likely take about three weeks.

Anthony Howell, the Trimble County resident charged with shooting his wife twice in their home on U.S. 42 near Pendleton last week was arraigned Tuesday. A Kentucky State Police spokesman said at the time of the shooting that Howell and his wife had been arguing and drinking when Howell shot her in the leg and chest late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning, Feb. 13. Howell, who is charged with first-degree domestic violence assault, told police the gun, a 9 mm handgun, discharged accidentally during the argument.

Howell was taken to Oldham County Detention Center and with the assistance of Donald Coble of Springfield, Missouri, posted a $50,000 cash bond Feb. 15, according to the jail's booking records. His request for a change in the bond conditions that would allow him to stay in the home was denied.

Howell's next hearing is March 3 at 10 a.m.

Disposables a blind spot in FDA's vaping crackdown

By MATTHEW PERRONE
AP Health Writer

WASHINGTON — The U.S. government on Feb. 6 began enforcing restrictions on flavored electronic cigarettes aimed at curbing underage vaping. But some teenagers may be one step ahead of the rules.

Parents, researchers and students warn that some young people have already moved on to a newer kind of vape that isn't covered by the flavor ban.

These disposable e-cigarettes are sold under brands like Puff Bar, Stig and Fogg in flavors such as pink lemonade, blueberry ice and tropical mango.

The Food and Drug Administration's crackdown narrowly targets reusable vaping devices like Juul, the blockbuster brand that helped trigger the teen vaping craze in the U.S. Under the new policy, only menthol and tobacco flavors are allowed for those devices.

Critics of the FDA policy fear teens will simply switch to the cheaper disposables, which are widely available at convenience stores and gas stations.

"They are very accessible and seem to be the new buzzy product," said Dr. Karen Wilson, a tobacco researcher and pediatrician at Mount Sinai's medical school in New York.

The FDA confirmed that the flavor restriction won't apply to "self-contained, disposable products," but only to rechargeable ones that use pods or cartridges prefilled with a nicotine solution.

The agency's rationale: Reusable vaping devices are far and away the most popular with underage users, preferred by more than 60% of high schoolers who vape, according to survey data collected last year.

The FDA's top tobacco regulator said it can still go after any vaping product that appeals to teenagers.

"If we see a product that is targeted to kids, we will take action," Mitch Zeller, who heads the agency's tobacco center, said in a statement.

Feb. 6 was the deadline for makers of reusable e-cigarettes to stop selling fruity and candy flavors. Juul was already in compliance. It dropped its best selling mint and most other flavors before the ban was announced in early January and only sells tobacco and menthol.

At a congressional hearing Feb. 5, the head of Fontem U.S., which makes blu vapes, was pressed to drop its vivid vanilla and cherry crush disposable e-cigarettes.

Fontem chief Antoine Blonde countered that its customers are adults, not children. Less than 3% of high school students who vape reported blu as their preferred brand, according to 2019 government data.

"We're not aware of any issue caused by our disposable flavors," Blonde said.

Sales of disposable e-cigarettes and all other tobacco and vaping products are prohibited to teenagers under the government's new age limit, which went from 18 to 21 late last year.

High school student Philip Fuhrman says most of his New York classmates who vape have ditched Juul for disposables like Stig, a tiny e-cigarette sold in flavors like mighty mint and mango bomb.

They're easier to hide because "they're smaller and when you're done you can just throw it away," said the 16-year-old Fuhrman, who says he no longer vapes. He's now an anti-vaping activist and his mother is one of the founders of a parents' group opposed to youth vaping.

At $20 for a three-pack, Stig may not seem cheap. But Fuhrman and other teens say it's a smaller investment than the $40 or $50 needed to buy a Juul device and a four-pack of pods. Furhman says teens will instead buy a pack of Stigs "for the weekend and then just be done with it."

The makers of Stig, Puff Bar and Fogg disposables did not respond to requests for comment.

Analysts report that disposables are still just 5% of the nearly $15 billion global vaping market, according to the firm ECigIntelligence.

Researchers who study e-cigarette trash around high schools say they have noticed a shift in what teens are vaping. Jeremiah Mock, of the University of California, San Francisco, has been finding discarded Puff Bars in local school parking lots over the last three months.

Vape shop owners also say the market is changing.

Since the FDA announcement, distributors and manufacturers have ramped up their disposable offerings, according to Vapewerks owner Jeremy Gardner in Cumberland, Maryland.

"How do disposables get a free pass when they're essentially the same thing as a Juul or anything else that comes with a prefilled pod?" he asked.

Gardner doesn't stock his most requested brand, Puff Bar, but sells a rival disposable. Most of his business comes from larger, tank-based vapes, which are more popular with adults and allow users to customize flavors and nicotine concentrations. Those products are exempt from government flavor restrictions.

E-cigarettes, which heat a nicotine solution into a vapor, are often promoted as a less harmful alternative to traditional cigarettes but the FDA has not approved any vaping product to help smokers quit. The makers of all vaping products face a May deadline to submit applications for government health and safety review.

Mike Chang, owner of Master Piece Smoke Shop in New York City, says most of his customers who buy disposables switched from Juul after the company pulled its mint, mango and dessert flavors last fall. The company took that voluntary step under pressure from multiple federal investigations and lawsuits from state and local authorities.

The San Francisco company's retail sales have fallen 35% since their peak last July, driven by the loss of flavors, according to Wall Street research firm Piper Sandler. Juul does not sell disposable e-cigarettes.

In a government survey last year, more than 1 in 4 high school students reported using e-cigarettes in the prior month. The next federal study begins this spring.

vape, they are choosing to add chemicals to an already dangerous substance, and some are making the repeated same poor choice within a matter of days."

School resource officers are looking for a common thread of shared or separate devices and a common source or a location from where the substances were purchased. Madison said SROs (school resource officers) are "tracking down leads from reports of supplies coming from China via the internet directly to homes and/or being purchased locally illegally by minors or by legal aged adults and given to minors."

"We have been lucky up to this point," said SRO and School Safety Coordinator Jacob McVey in the release Monday. "In some cases these kids have been on the verge of needing life-saving measures by emergency medical personnel."

Youth vaping is a problem at Madison and nationwide. The 2019 National Youth Tobacco Survey found that 27.5% of high schoolers and 10.5% of middle schoolers used e-cigarettes. The last Indiana Youth Tobacco Survey, published in 2018, found vaping had risen 14.7% among high schoolers since 2012 and 4.3% among middle schoolers. Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter said his office has received more than 40 cases of underage vaping from Madison SROs since the beginning of the school year.

"The rise in the use of vaping devices among minors has presented new and dangerous challenges due to the combination of chemicals involved. My office is committed to working with school officials to strictly enforce laws concerning the use and sale of tobacco and electronic cigarettes to minors. The health and safety risks are too high and I hope this will be a wake-up call to youth who are choosing to engage in this dangerous behavior," Sutter said. "As this continues to be investigated, I will be working closely with school leaders and I will also seek to work with the State Legislature on additional ways to address vaping devices in schools."

Madison uses a five-tiered discipline system dealing with students who are caught with vapes or other banned substances, starting with a written apology, talk with school counselor or detention and ending with long-term suspension, expulsion or referral to alternative education. Students may be referred to the juvenile court if caught, per school policy.

"Our goal and intent is to keep our students on campus and in class — that is our job," Studebaker said. "Our feeling is if we suspend or expel every student we discipline for use of these types of products, we are failing them not only academically, but providing an easier path for use of these dangerous devices, as well as, possibly other activities that are not healthy."

Independent film with local ties to screen next Wednesday

By CHARLIE ROHLFING

Two actors with strong Madison connections are part of the fourth and final movie in the Instrumental Visions Film Series presented by the Kindred Folk Society, which will be screened Wednesday, Feb. 26 at Red Bicycle Hall.

The movie, Mountain Minor, was written, directed and produced by Dale Farmer, who lives near Cincinnati.

Mike Oberst of the band The Tillers plays the great-grandson of the story's main character. While The Tillers are a Cincinnati-based band, they have a long and much-loved history here in Madison, playing our festivals, Red Bike Hall, Thomas Family Winery. I even caught them once at a smoky First Street Saloon many years ago.

Another actor in the movie, Ma Crow, also from Cincinnati, who played the part of Mike's great-grandmother, lived in Madison for many years back in the Marble Hill days. Both of her sons went to Lydia Middleton and Southwestern, and her son Nathan Green lives here now.

Ma Crow has played River Roots festival with her band, Ma Crow and the Lady Slippers.

Director Dale Farmer explained his thinking behind casting real musicians to act in his movie. "The project started as a short film, and musicians were my original intended audience. I didn't want any faking or fumbling during the music scenes in the movie, I wanted authenticity.

"But as the movie expanded in scope and became a full length feature, I discovered musicians can be great actors. I took special care to choose people who were already a lot like the characters they were playing. All I had to do was let them be themselves.

Mountain Minor was written, directed and produced by Dale Farmer, who lives near Cincinnati. Mike Oberst and Ma Crow, who both act in the movie, have strong ties to Madison. (Submitted photo).

"The movie is very much autobiographical. It's about the millions of Appalachian people who left their homes in the mountains and migrated to urban Midwestern centers in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Ohio.

"Through the movie I'm sharing my roots with audiences so they can experience the substance and special meaning of Appalachian music as it was passed down over the generations to today's stages, porches and media devices.

"One of the really great surprises in the movie is a young man named Asa Nelson. He plays the young grandfather character back in the 1930s. My grandfather was a great fiddler even at a young age, so we needed to portray that. Asa is actually a championship fiddler in his own right. But as it turns out, he's also an amazing actor. He won the best actor award at one of the film festivals we entered.

"Now Ma Crow is a great story. I know her from way back in the area music scene. But as it happens, she really reminds me of my actual grandmother. So she was a natural to cast in that part."

Ma Crow explained she "was a little intimidated at first, I've never acted in anything. And I wasn't sure how to approach the part. But then I saw some footage of the young actress playing my character in her youth. She was so free and strong-willed and confident. I knew then exactly how to play the grandmother.

"This story actually mirrors my own," Ma Crow continued. "My parents came up to Ohio from Tennessee to find work and I was born in Cincinnati. The music and traditions never die, and we're passing them on the best we can. This movie project is one of the most positive things I've ever been involved in."

Mountain Minor will be screened at Red Bicycle Hall Feb. 26 at 7 p.m. It is a ticketless event, but you may want to get there early to get a good seat because it might be a good crowd!

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK:

My biggest hot tip this week is, GET YOUR TICKETS EARLY! We have an amazing show at the Red Bike this Saturday featuring Michael Cleveland and Flamekeeper, this year's Grammy winner for best bluegrass album. But the show has been sold out for weeks. Keep an eye on this Music Calendar and don't miss your favorite artists.

A great show that's not sold out is Friday night at the Red Bike, Joslyn and the Sweet Compression. This funky soul band has it all, including a horn section.

On Sunday afternoon at the downtown Presbyterian Church, the Madison Performing Arts Foundation is presenting its annual Young Musicians Concert.

This is our best young artists doing their state competition pieces.

In other business, the council:

• Passed final adoption of two ordinance amendments — one that fixes new salaries for city police officers and creates salaries for new city positions in planning, outreach and city management and another that returns 110 Craigmont Street to its original light industry zone on the zoning map.

"The salary ordinance that was approved today was critical to implementing our police officer raises and creating our community outreach and preservation planner positions," Courtney said.

Lakeman retired several years ago after 41 years with the city under eight administrations as parks director including developing the Rucker Sports Complex.

Martinez has also been charged with other bank robberies in Louisville in 2016, 2018 and as recently as January 2020. Police say Martinez is charged with robbing the First Capital Bank at 9306 Taylorsville Road in 2016, the WesBanCo at 11810 Interchange Drive in 2018 and on Jan. 14, the WesBanCo at 301 Blankenbaker Parkway, all in Louisville. The location of the robbery in Clark County has not yet been released pending charges.

Harris said the various robbery cases were being worked as part of a large investigation involving the FBI, Louisville Metro Police Department, Jeffersonville Police Department, Clarksville Police Department and Madison Police Department. A break came in the case a couple of weeks ago, which turned the focus on Martinez and led to his arrest in Louisville last Thursday.

"We were all in the loop and they kept me up to date," Harris said of the FBI. "We followed leads and interviewed witnesses in our area — that's what our role was. We interviewed witnesses for several days."

Harris, who headed up the Madison portion of the investigation, was in Louisville Thursday when arrest warrants were served.

Martinez is being held at Metro Corrections in Louisville on a $500,000 cash bond. He is facing four counts of first-degree felony robbery there as well as armed robbery, a Level 3 felony, in Jefferson County as well as whatever charges Clark County files. He is schedule for a hearing on Monday, Feb. 24, in Louisville.

The investigation is ongoing, and further details will be released at a later date.

TAKING ADVANTAGE

TAKING AIM: Former Madison Cub and Shawe Hilltopper Adida Ikongshul takes aim (above) against Alma College while playing for Western Michigan earlier this season. Ikongshul (below) is wrapping up his four-year career at WMU and has already earned his Bachelor's degree. (Photos courtesy Western Michigan Athletics)

Ikongshul making the most of every moment as college career winds down

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

When Adida Ikongshul arrived in the United States from Nigeria six years ago, he came with only the bag he carried and no idea what to expect. But of one thing he was certain: He was not going to waste the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity that had come his way.

Ikongshul, who graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 2016, earned a Division I basketball scholarship to Western Michigan University and in December graduated a semester early with a Bachelor's degree in Business Management. He has already began working toward his Master's.

He may not have gotten as much playing time as he originally had hoped and that professional career never panned out, but the always smiling Ikongshul wouldn't trade the experience for anything in the world.

"Six years go I came here to the US as a kid with a backpack. That's all I had. Now, looking back, I'm like I really came a long way," Ikongshul said with a laugh. "I just came here for any kind of opportunity and the opportunity that I have had in the past six years were way more than I expected. My friends back home keep telling me that I'm my ancestors' wildest dreams and I'm like, I think you're right!"

Ikongshul came to the United States thanks to Michael and Leila Traylor and spent his junior season at Shawe where he averaged nearly 20 points per game. He transferred across town to Madison for his senior year where he led the Cubs to the sectional championship game and garnered Madison Courier Player of the Year honors.

He signed with Western Michigan after his junior year and thanks to the college courses he was able to take at Madison as a senior, he was able to graduate from WMU a semester early.

An explosive athlete standing 6-foot-6, Ikongshul wowed area fans for two years with his dunking and ability to operate in the paint. But as a volleyball player back home in Nigeria who discovered basketball at a relatively late age, he quickly found out that while he was a big fish in a small pond in Madison, it was hard to stand out in college.

While Ikongshul said he briefly considered transferring after his sophomore year to a school closer to home, he still loved Western Michigan and was more than happy to concentrate on academics.

"After my freshman year I knew that I wasn't going to play pro just because the way everything went down. I knew I could be a good player, just not at a pro level," Ikongshul said. "So I just focused on my academics and did whatever I could to help my team to get a win. Basi-

Bucket List team acquires new boat, sponsors

sports@madisoncourier.com

The Bucket List Racing Team has acquired a new boat and a new sponsor for the upcoming 2020 H1 Unlimited Hydroplane series.

The team, which is based out of Snohomish, Washington, purchased the backup boat of the U-21 Go Fast Turn Left Racing Team last week and made the news official on Tuesday. The Team has also signed Puget Sound Carstar Business Group and radio station KISW as sponsors for the season.

"This is a first for us. We are amped and ready to team up with Carstar and KISW this summer," said Bucket List Racing co-owner Kelly Stocklin.

"We've put together an amazing team, and we are looking forward to seeing what we can accomplish with our new boat," added Sharon Stocklin, Kelly's wife and co-owner.

The Bucket List Racing Team has garnered fans across the country by attempting to compete at the sport's highest level despite using a boat and engine that are smaller than their competitors. Last season the team and driver Dustin Echols got the tiny orange boat up to comparable speeds with the middle of the field, but were still far behind the top competitors.

The addition of the former U-21 hull upgrades the team considerably. Originally built in 2007, the boat was rebuilt several years ago and gives the Bucket List team its fastest boat to date. Go Fast Turn Left debuted a new hull last summer.

"We're very happy to see the boat go to a team with such a competitive spirit and we wish Kelly, Sharon and all the Bucket List Racing group the best for 2020," Go Fast Turn Left Racing owner Greg O'Farrell said.

In addition to the new boat, the sponsorships give the team an added boost.

"Puget Sound Carstar Business group is very excited to continue our partnership with KISW and the Carstar Powered Miss Rock," Puget Sound Carstar Business Group Marketing Chair Kevin Parsons said. "After spending some time with Kelly Stocklin you can feel his competitiveness and his vision for leading the pack in 2020"

"The Carstar Powered Miss Rock, with its 40 years of tradition, is now in the best racing hands it's ever been in. We're proud to partner with Carstar and Bucket List in 2020," KISW Senior Vice President of Programming Dave Richards said.

Bucket List Racing will be keeping fans updated on improvements being made to the Miss Rock for the 2020 season through their social media platforms.

• Ikongshul

cally I just accepted my role on the team and by accepting my role early it made it really easy for me."

While Ikongshul didn't have the kind of college playing career he envisioned, he made up for it in experiences. He got a chance to play against some of the best teams in the country, including a Christmas-break game at Michigan State this year where he played six minutes and had an assist. Against Ole Miss as a junior he had six points, three rebounds and an assist in one of the games he said he'll remember the most.

But his most important statistic collegiately is his GPA. He has made the All-Mid-American Conference Academic Team each of the last two years, including posting a 3.49 GPA as a junior. With a degree already under his belt, he's a shoe-in to make it three-straight years this season.

Western Michigan has six regular-season games left and Ikongshul has already circled senior night on March 3 against rival Eastern Michigan. He expects a large contingent of friends and family to be in attendance for what will surely be an emotional day, but one in which he is looking forward.

"It's going to be a sad moment but I'm also really excited for the next chapter in my life," Ikongshul said. "I feel like I've been under this basketball circle for quite a while and I feel like I have more to give to society than just as a basketball player.

"It was a big learning experience for me but I appreciate every single second I've had here. It's been a blessing."

I CAN'T BE YOUR BODYGUARD, CLAWFULL
ARE YOU KIDDING? LOOK AT YOU!
DULL, UNINTELLIGENT EXPRESSION ON YOUR FACE... LARGE BODY... YOU HAVE "DUMB MUSCLE" WRITTEN ALL OVER YOU!
I DON'T WANT TO BE YOUR BODYGUARD BECAUSE I DON'T WANT PEOPLE TO THINK WE'RE FRIENDS
DON'T WORRY ABOUT THAT
I'M SURE MOST PEOPLE REALIZE THAT I HAVE MUCH HIGHER STANDARDS THAN THAT SERIOUSLY, DID YOU JUST MAKE THAT WORD UP?

NO, IT'S REAL. I MADE UP "YALKING"- ANGRILY YELLING AT SOMEONE WHILE WALKING AWAY.
BUT IT SOUNDED TOO MUCH LIKE VIRULENT VOMITING, SO LIKE "FETCH," IT DIDN'T HAPPEN.

BRIDGE

HOW TO MAKE PARTNER DO THE UNUSUAL

Niccolo Machiavelli wrote, "There is nothing more difficult to take in hand, more perilous to conduct or more uncertain in its success than to take the lead in the introduction of a new order of things."

So true. Last week, we looked at fourth-suit game-forcing. It was first proposed by Londoner Norman Squire in his book "The Theory of Bidding," which was published in 1957. Impressively, what he wrote then is still the accepted theory today.

This deal features a double that causes debate even among experts. East opens one spade, South overcalls one no-trump, West passes, North raises to three no-trump, and East doubles. What does that double mean?

It cannot be for takeout; it must be for penalty. But which suit is it asking West to lead?

I have read books and articles where the authors say that it insists on a spade lead. But, with all due respect, that is crazy!

What is West going to lead against three no-trump undoubled?

Right -- a spade. Even if he has a nice-looking long suit like his hearts in this deal, he has no entry to get in and cash any winners he might be able to establish. East has their points, so West will lead his partner's suit.

East's double must be asking for the lead of a different suit. East has winners ready to cash if West can find the right suit. So, what should West lead?

Given West's diamond shortage, that is his percentage choice. Note that here it turns three no-trump plus one (after a spade or heart lead) into three no-trump minus one.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the "Walk for a Dog" or "Woof-Trax" app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter.

A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours.

For animal control issues in Madison, call (812) 265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call (812) 265-2648.

ZAN AND JAYNA

Zan and Jayna were brought in together. They love to sit in boxes and be scratched behind the ears. Jayna is a little more loving than her brother, but she is sure to open up to those around her. She loves to meet new friends who visit the shelter. Zan is a little scared right now, but is doing very well. He is currently working on being picked up, which is not his favorite thing.

Workaholic co-worker's eyes on the clock

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I've had my current job for four years. I work at a small company of about 20 employees. My co-worker, "Beth," has been here about a year longer than me. She joined my department about six months ago. One thing I appreciate about my department is our work-life balance. We care about our work, but we also care about having time for our families and other interests outside of work. I will, of course, stay late when there's something urgent or important that I need to get done or if a co-worker needs help with something. But that only happens maybe once a month. Even then, I rarely stay more than an hour later.

Beth previously worked in a department of self-professed workaholics. They pride themselves on regularly working 11-hour days. She's brought that attitude with her to my little department, and it's upsetting the reasonable dynamics.

I leave work around 6:05 p.m. or 6:10 p.m. (My day ends at 6 p.m.) We work in an open office, so my co-workers can see when I'm taking off for the day. Every day, without fail, I see Beth looking up at the clock in the corner of her computer screen or glancing down at her watch. It drives me bonkers. I hate feeling like she's judging me.

I've thought about casually mentioning all I've accomplished throughout the day as I get ready to head out, but then I realize that would be silly. It's not as though she's my boss. (My boss, by the way, leaves around the same time as me, though from her separate office.)

How would you handle this? — I Like My Evenings, Thanks

Dear ILMET: It's time for you to stop caring about whatever Beth may think about you — which you really don't know one way or the other. Perhaps she always looks at the clock when you get up to leave because she's thinking, "Wow, I can't believe it's already 6."

Working late does not necessarily mean working hard. If you can get all your work done within normal hours, that means you're efficient. If Beth enjoys staying late at work every night, let her knock herself out.

Dear Annie: We have been living in our house for more than 30 years and have always had pets. We've never had a mouse problem in the house — until now. This has been a very cold winter, and I saw a tiny mouse in the kitchen sink several weeks ago. I turned the water on and didn't see the mouse for weeks, but this week I have heard mouse noises and seen evidence of cat treat bags bitten or scratched open, and our cat's food and treats tampered with. Is there anything I can do to get rid of the mouse (or mice) without endangering our cat? — Karen in Kansas City, MO

Dear Karen in Kansas City: When nature comes inside, there are natural ways to show it the door. For mice, deterrents include the wonderful-smelling peppermint oil and the not-so-wonderful-smelling bobcat urine. (You can find predator urine at home improvement stores and online.) Some also have reported success with Tabasco sauce.

Be sure to keep your house extra clean. Store pet food in airtight plastic containers. Plug any holes that might be mouse entryways with steel wool, the one material that they cannot chew through.

See the Humane Society's "Humane Rodent Solutions" page for more tips on nontoxic methods of mouse removal (https://www.hsi.org/news-media/humane-rodent-solutions).

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now!
